TO THE RIGHT VER-TVOVS, HIGH, AND MIGHTIE PRINCE KING IAMES, OVR DRED SOVERAIGNE, BY THE GRACE OF GOD, KING of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the Faith, &c. long life, happie daies, and moft profperous raigne.

S there is not any thing in this world more acceptable vnto God, (moft gracious Soueraigne) then a contrite heart: fo I prefume that there is not any thing in this world (next to the leue of God) more acceptable vnto your Majestic, then a true and loyall subject. Thus vsing this persona sion, for a sure argument of your Majestics gracious acceptance, I presume to manifest my selfe, a most true and loyall subject vnto your Majestie. In token whereof, I haue gathered the chiefe of my treasurie, the which in most humble and obedient manner, I present vnto your Highnesse: beseeching your Highnesse not to missive your subject, for the subject, such as for the good of all your Majesties louing subjects. The Art is deuine, the Instrument laudable, my Meaning good, my Skill drownde in the depth of Catoes wordes (who faith) Nec te collaudes, nec te culpaueris ipfe. And yet I can fay for my selfe, that once I was thought (in Denmarke at Elfanure) the fittes to instruct your Majesties Queene, our most gracious Ladie and Mistres.

Thus prostrating my selfe at your Majesties feet, incessantlie crauing pardon for my bold attempt, I rest. Restles in praier, for your Graces welfare, both now and euer.

Your Majesties

obedient subject,

Thomas Robinson.

To the Reader.

Ight courteous Gentlemen, and gentle Readers, your fauourable acceptance of my first fruits from idleness, hath eccited mee further to congratulate your Musicall endeauours. And in my conceit, I can no way better fit your good and willing mindes, then in shewing you how you may very soone, and very perfectly instruct your selves to play (vpon your best beloued instrument) the Lute, also the Orpharion, Pandora, and Viol de Gamba, any lesson (if it bee not too too trickified) at the first fight. But bee it as it bee may, you shall haue rules of reason, to ouer-rule vnreasonable odd Cratchets, giueing you to vnderstand, that what is beyond the true courle of Nature, must needes bee without all compasse of Art; and withall, nothing out-runneth Nature but Follie 1 fo much for that.

Also (for example sake) I have set some lessons of all forts : whereof some being old, I was requested to set them new after my fashion, some new out of the sat, some neither very new, nor very old, but yet all mine owne setting, and the most of them, mine owne invention.

But Gentlemen, once more I will make you promise, that if these Mafterlike rules, and Scholerlike lessons, doe but any whit content you. I will come forth, With Cracke mee this Nut, (I meane) onely lessons for one, two, and three Lutes, and some with ditties, wherein I will striue either (for euer) to winne your fauours, or starue in the dole of your disprace.

More for you, than for him-felfe,

Thomas Robinfon.

The Schoole of Musicke, perfectly teaching the true fingering of the Lute, Pandora, Orpharicn, and Violl de Camba, Dialogue wife, betwixt a Knight, (who hath children to be taught) and Timotheus, that thould teach them.

KNIGHT.

OV are hartelie welcome into the countrie, and the better welcome, for that you come at the first fending for, for it is an old faying, that cunning men are curious, efpeciallie Musitions.

TIMOTHEVS.

Sir, if I had thought I fhould not have beene welcome, you might have thought me vnwife to have taken all this paines : againe, it was my promife to inftruct your children, and am readie at your pleafure; but I pray you, why flould Mufitions bee more curious then others.

Kni. In keeping your promife, you haue done well, and fo well as I can, I will anfwere your demaund : in mine opinion, I think it impoffible to be a good Mufition.except a man be feene in all the feauen liberall Sciences, for I know many great clarkes in Diuinitie, Phificke, I. aw, Philosophie, &c. that haue finall, or no knowledge at all in Mufick; nay, fome that quite reject it. Now fith it behough a good Mufition to bee fomewhat feene in all Arts, I conclude, that this all (with the help of an od crotchet) is the reafon why Mufitions are fo curious.

Trulie fir, your concluding all, is both thort & tharp, how be it I muft graunt you this, that it is Tim. behouefull a Mufition that would bee excellent, to be feene in all or the moft part of the feauen liberall Arts, and fo neere as I can, I will thew you which, and how necessarie those are, that a Musition ought not to be ignorant off. First hee must be a divine, that is, he must be divinelie given, he must above all things ferve God, that God may bleffe him, in all his good indeuoures; hee must read the scriptures, for it is the fountaine of all knowledge, & it teacheth the divine harmonic of the foule of man : for Muficke is none other then a perfect harmonie, whole divinitie is seene in the perfectnesse of his proportions, as, his vnilon sheweth the vnitie, from whence all other, (concords, difcords, confonancies, or others whatfoeuer) fpringeth, next his vnitic, his third: (which is the perfecteft concord that is in all Muficke) reprefenteth the perfect,& moft holie Trinitie; his fift, (the most perfect consonance in all Musicke, for that it is the verie estence of all concords) representeth the perfection of that most perfect number of fine, which made the perfect atonement, betweene God, and many His eight, (which as it is, but as his vnifon,) reprefenteth his Alpha and Omega: &c as what is aboue his eight, is but as a repetition, as from his vnifon, as it were a new beginning; fo it fheweth our returne from whence we came, as it were, in notes of Muficke, in a long or fhort time, fweet or fowre composition, and thus, (I hope, without offence to that most holie Ipha and Omega) I conclude, the necefsitie of divinitie in a Mulition. Now that a Mulition thould bee a Philition, I fee no fuch necessitie, But that Muficke is Phifical, it is plainlie feene by those maladies it cureth. As it cureth melancholies it much preuaileth againft madneffes If a man be in paines of the gout, of any wound, or of the head, it much mittigateth the furie theroftand it is faid, that Muficke hath a falue for cuerie fore. But of necessitie, a Mufition mult be a perfect Arethmatition, for that Muficke confifteth altogether of true number, and proportion, and thus, at this fo cheefe, and neceffarie fcience of Arithmaticke, I hould it beft to ftay the proceffe of Muficke, as touching the necessitie of other than these, which I have mentioned to bee fit in a good Musition.

Kni. I like you wel, & loue your Musicke the better, for your good discourse therof, and my hope is (in a maner) alreadie fatisfied, but notwithstanding, there remaineth in mee, a little spark of feare of an cuell that may happen, after all your paines taken, and my cost bestowed.

Tim. Why fir, it may bee you feare least your children should die, when you have brought them vp well, and bestowed great cost vpon them, or if they should prove vnkinde hereaster, or if they should fet light by that good qualitie, which cost them so little, and you so much.

Kni. You fay well good Timotheus, all this is to be doubted, but I feare none to much as the laft, which is, that they will be careleffe and forgetfull, of to excellent a qualitie as is playing vpon the Lutes and my feare is the greater, for that it was mine owne fault, that in my youth could have played to well, as any in those daies, and now it is as cleane forgotten, and which is more, I have no willing mind in the world, either to practife (to recour that I loft;) or to learne a new: for the play that is now, and the leffons (that are now a daies) are fo curiouffic fet, that we of the olde mine, are finoakt vp like to lea-cole, and this age, hath the golden ore, and fparkling diamondes of divine Mustitions, that for mine owne part, I am content, to give place both to youth, and the time, onclic content to be an auditore, and lover of the beft,

Tim. Sir, it is verie true, that manie, both men and women, that in their youth could have played (for that kinde of play) passing well, in their age, or when they once have beene married, have forgotten all, as if they had neuer knowne what a Lute had ment: and the reason I finde to proceed (in the beguning of their learning) from the ignorance of their teachers, for in older times they from (onelie) to have a quick hand vpon the Lute, to runne hurrie hurrie, keeping a Catt in the gutter vpon the ground, now true then falle, now vp now downe, with such painfull play, mocking, mowing, gripeing, grinning, fighing, fupping, heaving, shouldring. labouring, and structure, or guide the bodie, or know any thing, that belongeth, either to skill or reason.

Kni. Now truly Timotheur, I am perfwaded you have hit the marke, and when it went fo hard with them in fuch easie, and simple stuff, as then they vied, what shift would they make to play at the first sight (in these daies) an indifferent lesson set, if they were now living, but I pray you can you play any lesson at the first sight, and also teach others to doe the same.

Tim. Yea Sir, that I can, or elfe I were not worthy to be a teacher, for it hath ben the most part of my studie to bring the Lute, Citharen, (and other instruments of Musick) into a method by generall rules, most perfect and easie, so that with my instructions, one (that cannot vse the Lute, or other instrument) may verie readilie attaine to a good habit therof.

Knis Well Timothens, the verie truth is, I haue hard fo much as you fay, & therfore in the name of God, begin with my children when you pleafe, and God willing) you shall be pleafed for your paines, but I will make this condition with you (good Timothens) that you shall give me leave to aske you some questions, by the way, in your instructions, for it doth me good to heare your reason, how fay you Timothens, are you content it shall bee fo?

Tim. With all my hart Sir, for by fo doing, I shall daylie injoy your good companie, and with all, it will greatlie further the profit of your children, and with the more ease, and comfort passe ouer the tediousnes of teaching.

Kni. I thanke you Timothens, but what if you did first write downe all such rules (as you vie for instruction) that they may from the beginning, (having them by hart) do nothing but that they may have it in memorie and grounded by reason.

Tim. You fay well it thall bee fo, and at your pleafure aske what queftions you pleafe, and I will fhew you the reafon for it to the full, and I hope fuch as shall fatisfie you fullie, wherefore in the name of God I thus begin. First it behoueth a scholer to have a verie good instrument verie well strung, faire to the eie, and easie to reach any stop what source, and verie well founding.

Kni. Why, mee thinks it were no great matter what inftrument a beginner hath, confidering that for the most part, young beginners, some make old instruments, as young scholers some make old bookes.

Tim. Indeede to haue a good inftrument lieth as much in the habilitie of the parents or friends, as alfo in their good wils to haue it forbut why I think it good to haue (if it were possible) even the verie best inftrument for a learner at the first, is this : a good inftrument will please a learner every way, for it delighteth them to looke and behold it now & then, likewise they love easie and finooth inftruments, and although they can do but little, yet it will found well, and so incourage them to learne with delight, whereas contrariwise, a bad or dull inftrument will quell their spirits quite, so that in a long time, or never, will they profit in their forced labours.

Kni. I promife you, it now feemeth to meeverie good reafon that it should bee so, and againe it is an old and true faying, that one good thing is ever worth ten bad, also there is small loss in a good thing, it ever yeldeth monie with profit: well here is a Lute according to your defire in all points, I pray you goe forward good Timothews.

Tim. Now you have a good Lute, it behoueth you to love it and vie it well, for by the viage you shall shew your love, therfore marke how you ought to vie your Lute, aboue all things, keepe it from wet, for wet will spoile the strings and make loose the ribs, and when you have done playing vpon it, put it vp into the case, putting the Trebles a little down, but first you shall learne to handle your Lute with a comelie grace, readie to play with delight, and to this purpose in the name of God, doe as I shall instruct you.

GENERALL RVLES.

F Irft fitting vpright with your bodie, leane the edge of the Lute against the table, and your bodie against the Lute, not too hard for hurting your Lute, neither to fossile for letting of it fall, for the table, your bodie, and your right arme, must fo poyes the Lute, that you may have your left hand at libertie to carie to, and fro, at your pleasure, letting the middle part of the neck of the Lute, flide vp and downe the brawne of the thumb which is against the nayle of the faid thumb, houlding out the wrest of the hand, and alwaies carrying your thumb against your forefinger in any stop whatsoever, for so thall your hand be the more comelie, the more readie, and with the more ease, stop any stop the cleaner, now for your right hand, called the striking hand leane vpon the bellie of the Lute with your little finger onelie, & that, neither to far from the Treble thrings, neither to necre, and although you ought to leane lightlie, yet carie your hand steddilie, not fliding out of his place, also remembring, to leane lightlie vpon your arme vpon your Lute, for otherwise it wil

it will paine the finewes and hinder your play. All the aforefaid had, both in memorie and practifes (the houlding of your Lute, carrying of your hand, and fitting vpright with your bodie, I mean) then (in the name of God) houlding the Lute (as is aforefaid) comelie with your thumb againft your forefinger (as it were readie to flop, yet but onelie houlding your Lute then with the thumb of your right hand (houlding the reft of the fingers ftraight forth before your thumb (neither to neere the ftrings nor too farre off, begin to thrik the first firing downward with the thumb onelie, and alfo striking with your thumb behind your fingers lav: Bale, Tenor, Contra-tenor, Great Meanes, Small meanes Treble. This done : then begin at the Trebles and fo goe vpward viz. backward, flriking them flring by flring with your forefinger before your thanb, that is houlding downe your thumb behind your fingers, and name them in order faying, Treble Small Meaner, Great Meaner, Contratenor, Tenor, Bale, this doing to oft, downward and vpward, nameing them, and also striking them with the thumb behind the fingers, that you have it most perfect and reache both in mind & fingers. This perfectlic had : learne to know your frets in order, and in floping them comdie, cleanlie, & ftronglie, the first ftring or Treble, flopped in the first fret, by the head of the Lute with the forefinger, is h in the Treble, and to Hopped in the finall meanes, great meanes &c. The first fret is h, the fecould fret is  the third fret is and fo forth vintill you come to i which is the laft fret about the neck of the Lute, but you may glue on more fretts in fit place and space (vntill you come to M. Againe if you have 14. 16. or 18. ftrings, thole bales are called Diapafones, now having the names & knowledge of the ftrings and flops perfectly by roate, you shall also learne to know them by booke (called Tabletme.)

Kns. Now truly Timoth: 1 like this method verie well, for I perceiue, great reation in it: But we (in old time) have bene taught with rigour, not by reafon, & that made vs the run, now vnregarded; for I fee, that the houlding of the thombe alwaies against the fore-finger, giueth (not onely a great eafe, & grace to the player) but alfo, it determine that certain limitation to the hand, as of necessite it mult be to: proceed good Timothem.

Tim. Sir, by this you fee, how neceffarie a thing it is, to know how to hould an infrument, before it is to know how to ftop it, and likewife, how fit it is to know (both how to hould, & what to ftop, first by roate, before it were fit to learne by the booke: for quell the fpirits, & quaile delight. Now you know how to hold your Lute; alfo, what the ftrings and ftops are, without booke: Now you shall learne vyhat they be by the booke; look how you name them ypon the Lute in order, vpward, and downward, fo these lines, by the like denomination, thall fignifie vnto you what ftrings they be by Tableswer Example:

Treble.	b[r] p[t] f[g f] i
Small Meanes.	b T b t f g h i
Great Meanes,	$ \mathbf{p} \mathbf{r} \mathbf{p} \mathbf{t} \mathbf{f} \mathbf{f} \mathbf{h} \mathbf{i}$
Contra-tenot,	b F D E F G H I
Tenor.	b r D t f g b t
Bale.	$b [\varepsilon] D [\varepsilon] f [9] B [i$

Some in the fteed of (i) put (y) and although you, here fee but fix fingle lines, and vpon the Lute euesfrie ftring double, you shall vnderstand, that two strings are in one tune, & also beare the name but of one string: as Base, not Bases.Tenor, not Tenors. Now let vs proceede, to learne a lefton by the booke. But first take this lefton by the way, offer not rathly to stop or strike, but be well aduifed, with what finger to stop, & with what to strike, and for that purpose, mark what figure standeth vnder the letter, whether the figure of 1.2.3. or 4. for these figures represent the 4. fingers of the left or slop jung hand. The figure of 1. reprefenteth the first or fore-finger. 2. the fecond. 3. the third, and 4. the little finger. Also that letter which is to be striken downward, and if there be a prick vnder the letter, that letter must be striken vpward : this well noted, begin to play these stops and strokes following, striking them by 4. and 4. all in one length of time, vntill you can play it a pace, or runne it quick.

Doe these points perfectly, not ftriuing at it, but with such ease, as if you did it careless, observing the carriage both of hand & bodys & when you are weary, leaue it, and to it againe, but go to it with a willing minde.

Kni. How would you have them learne this leffon, not knowing the tymes over head? were it not neceffarie to teach them that first ?

Tim. No, for the time without ftops or tune, is but an abstract, & my purpose is, first to teach the the ftops, & then the times with all afterwards: & therfore, I have set it with all one time over head, as you see, vntill the less bet he name & nature of that time well comitted to memory, and this less had, than will I instruct them in all the varieties of tymes : as followeth.

A young beginner (although this were Semiquauer tyme) shall in the despight of his hart, make every ftroke a Semibrefe, & then as he multiplyeth in perfectnes, to he fhal multiply in fallneffe of tyme, wherby is to be noted, that from one time all other are multiplyed & doubled, as for example. This long ftroke here is in Tableture, a Semibrefe, which by adding of one dash to the top, as thus, reaketh it double his tyme, that is twice as fast a tyme as it was before And by adding one dash more to that dash thus, reaketh it yet as fast againe as the second: & by adding a third dash thus, B maketh it yet as fast againe maketh it yet as falt againe as the fecond: & by adding a third dath thus, R maketh it yet as falt againe 1 as the fame. And by adding the fourth dash thus, R doubleth the time before him: whose names are as tolloweth.

Heere you see, two Minims make a Semibrefe. Likewise, foure Cratchets make a Semibrefe. Also, eight Quanors go to a Semibrefe. And lastly, fixtene Semiquaners go to a Semibrefe. This is sufficient for the knowing of the tymess onely, that if there be a little prick, befide any one of them, thus, 1. 1. P. P. A. that then that prick doth make the tyme he ftadeth by, half to long againe as it was before, as a prick by a Semibrefe maketh it a Semibrefe & half a Semibrefe: & fo of all the reft; & this learne by hart.

Kni. Well when they can run this point or treble (as you call it) by 4. and 4. together in order, a Quaner or Semiguauer time, what is therby to be noted, or learned, as a profit attained towards the readic playing of a leffon at the first fight, which they never see before.

It is a verie neceffarie queftion which you demaund, and you shall understand, how necessarie, Tim. true, and perfect a rule it is, which not knowne, it is impossible that ever one should play a lesson, either at the first fight, or cunningly : For first, where you fee a letter or stop without any prick under it, you shall for euer in the like ftop, ftrike it downward, for two reafons, the first is, if it ftand alone, that is, if it be a $$ and the next a $$ or the first a $$ and the fecond a $$ the first a $$ the next a $$ going fo $$ infe-more naturall to be ftriken downward, than vpward, but the fwiftneffe of tyme, is the caufe of ftriking vp-

Going in 4. and 4. then for euer, the first is downe, the second is vp3 fo that if the pricks were away, this is a generall rule. Now by this rule, you may by occasion, strike twice down togethers as if you have a point be-PP

Heere the first is downeward, because it stands alone; And the houlding your thoumb against your fore-finger. Now, it is a generall rule, that where you leave no stop, leave no finger; and where you leave a stop, leave a finger, as this example following sheweth.

Here you fee betwist r, and D no ftop betweene, therefore you leave no finger betweenes againe you fee, that in the next flop where you have 12 and D you leave a flop which is r, and confequently you leave a finger betweene the first and the third, which is the fecond, and this is ingenerall, in playing of any Trible whatfocuer. Now you have a generall rule for firiking, downeward and vpward, and alfo for leaving a finger and no finger Now you fhall have a generall rule to grace it, as with pathonate play, and relifing it : and note that the longer the time is of a fingle flroke, that the more neede it hath of a relifh, for a relifh will help, both to grace it, and also it helps to continue the found of the note his full time : but in a quicke time a little touch or jerke will ferue, and that onely with the most strongest finger. Passionate play is to runne fome part of the squares in a Treble (that is foure and foure) first loud, then foff, and to in a decorum, now louder, now foster, (not in extremitie of either) but as companie of other influements, or farnesse off giueth occafion. And to the better inftruction of all fcholers for the Lute, I will (God willing) fet downe Tome, Trebles, which shall containe all manner and kinde of points for the fingering, in their due place of my booke, and the grounds alfo to be playd with them, when they pleafe, (and can have the ground plaid to them.) And now (God willing) I will proceed to inftruct my fcholer how to play, a tuil lefton, what It ange invention foeuer it thall feeme to have in it. Notwithstanding, I have knowne feme (which have bene more curious, than either cunning, or wife,) who have ftriuen to finde out ftops, both vinaturall, vnpleafant, and vnvfuall, (forfooth to be thought great bugges) that have in all their lives, not bene al le to play euen but an easie lesson (in comparison) at the first sight. But rob, and run by guesse, se goodly &c. But let fuch looke heeres and they shall finde reason to guide them, and truth in Aste. And to let them take heede of thould faying, Art hath no enemie but Ignorance. Now to the purpole, before : I have taught you, how to behaue your felfe in all fingle ftops, now be as diligent in all forts of full ftops: for in this lyeth all the whole skill : for that in a full leffon, all manner of flops, full or fingle, fwift or flow, are contained, therefore know this, and know all, all which I will thew you in breefe and generall rules (God willing,) with all fuch examples as shall seeme fit.

First, you shall vnderstand, that wee terme the fore-finger, and the little finger (of the flopping hand) two extreames : for that they be the outmost parts thereof, & that in going downward with a point, (fro the head of the Lute) the point is alwaics begun with the forefinger, as thus :

I

But contrariwife, from the bodie of the Lute, to the head, the point must be begun, with the other extreame, as this example sheweth.

this example of the two extreams, you fee the first gouerneth the vpper part or frets, and the other, the nether part, or next loweft : and thus the forefinger alwaies, in any ftop wher (b) is, full, or fingle, except there a bee in one ftop, 2. (bees,) and an (2) betweene) is to posses the ftop (b)as this example maketh plaine :

4 I

3 I

3 I

Note alfo, that $\underline{\tau}$ in any of the Bafes in a full ftop, wherein is an $\underline{\alpha}$ (& $\underline{\cdot}$ in the more Treble ftrings $\underline{\cdot}$ is the loweft of the ftop) that that $\underline{\tau}$ $\underline{\alpha}$ is to be thopped with the fecond finger alwaies : but if there be (in fted $\underline{\cdot}$ of $\underline{\cdot}$ with $\underline{\tau}$ in one of the Bafes) an $\underline{\epsilon}$ than $\underline{\tau}$ muft bee ftop- $\underline{\tau}$ ded with the fore-finger, as thus :

But in any full ftop whatfoeuer, wherein ther is neuer an _1 there lay your fore-finger along in the highest of the ftop, flat vpon the neck of the Lute; as thus:

Here lay your fore-linger along, in the first stop, in b in the next, in t in the next, in t in the next, in t with that in any flop whatfocuer, that you pluck away no finger, whill you needes must. And as before I have taught you how to relysh in a fingle flop, with that finger which is the florongest, so take this for a general rule, that you relysh in a full flop, with that finger which is most ideleft, in any ftring whatfocuer: either a florong relysh for loudness.

Kni. In mine opinion, you have fpoke fo much as may be fpoken, for the left hand in all points : but I pray you, are there not the like rules for the right hand, called the flriking hand.

Tim. Yes Sir, that there be: for what auaileth it to ftop neuer fo neate, fine and cleane, and if it be flubberd with a bad touch, or flroke: therefore, let thefe rules following, be obferued diligently, without the which, all fine play of the Lute is fpoild, and nothing worth. Note, that you flrike cleane, plump together in a full flroke of many parts or flrings, fometimes loude, fometimes foft, letting your right hand, anfivere the left hand at the inflant, flriuing with no flroke: and to conclude, the touch of the one hand, to anfivere the flop of the other hand, in the full harmony of confent, (called a Simpathie,) and then to know what flrings to flrike, with what fingers, mark all thefe rules following, and let them not be forgotten.

You have heard, that every flook is more naturally to be flriken downeward then vpward, which is very true, but above all, the Bafes are to be flriken downeward, and for the fame purpole, you fee how aptly the thumb fitteth that office, and likewife the fingers remaine as readie to flrike vpward and meet the thumbe with their troupes of notes, as who should fay the one were readie to aid the other; and fo they bee, yet fome-times feuerall, one after the other, as fometimes first the thumbe, and the fingers after, fometimes the fingers first, and the thumbe after, and fometimes both together, as here vnderneath you fee.

Here, the Tener beginneth the point with \underline{a} open flriken downeward with the thumbe, and \underline{a} in the Treble followes flriken vpward with the third finger, next \underline{r} in the Contratenor flriken downeward with the thumbe, & laft of the 4 followes \underline{b} in the finall Meanes, flriken vpward with the fecond finger. And nove the reason why \underline{c} in the Treble and \underline{b} in the finall Meanes, are flriken vpward with the third and fecond fingers, is this, the more flrings are betweene the Base and Trebles, the more fingers are left betweene the the thumb and little finger, and likewise the fewer flrings the fewer fingers, as you fee about mentioned.

Againe where you fee three prickes vnder any letter as thus A you fhall ftrike that letter vpward with the third finger, and fo when you fee two prickes thus A vpward with the fecond, and one pricke with the fore finger as thus A. It skils not what letter, or ftrng it is, but if a point begin with two letters together, although it follow the point either in the Trebles, Meanes, or Bafes, yet fhall the fecond of the point be ftriken vpward as for example.

Here you fee the forefinger poffeffe his due place, as is aboue mentioned, alwaies obferning the diffance of ftrings, and this is fufficient for all fuch points or places whatfoeuer.

Kni. Although this at the first feeme hard to vnderstand, yet it flandeth with very good reason, and it must be wonne with labour and diligence, and when a man bath faid neuer for much, or all that hee can fay, yet there will fomewhat remaine for a learner to finde out and confider vpon by hindelfe. Yet is there remaining (to speake of two effectial points behind, which is, when and how to vse a fall with a relish, and also a rule to tune the Lute.

Tim. You fay very true Sir, and one more then you thinke off, not leffencedefull then any of the reft, and that is this : remember alwaies to keepe your hands cleane, and your nules thort, and also earely and late to practife, Quin Labor vincet ometa. Now to your fall with a relift, or a fall without a relifth : take this for a generall rule, that all fals in what flop foeger, in a flat note, mult be e performed with the neereft finger to the halfe notes, and in a fharp note or flop, with the neereft and flrongell finger to a full note. As here you fee vnderneath for example.

Here the ftops where b is placed, must have his fall from c in the fame ftring where b is placed, (the finger laid along in f) must have his fall from f in the fame ftrings, in the next where f is in the Trebl, because f is fharp, must have his fall from the full note f, and f having had his fall, may fo bee held ftill without moving the forefinger, and the relish continued (with the little finger) in b which is vnder halfe note, and fo of all the reft.

Now you shall learne to tune your Lute, and for a generall rule, first fet vp the Treble, so high as you dare venter for breaking, fetting them both in one tune or sound called an vnison; then in the like fort fet vp the finall Meaner, stopping them in $\underline{+}$, and making them in $\underline{+}$ agree with the Trebles in $\underline{-}$, which is likewife an vnison. Likewise make the great Meaners in $\underline{+}$ an vnison with the finall Meaners in $\underline{-}$, the Contratener in $\underline{+}$ an vnison with the great Meaners in $\underline{+}$, the Tener in $\underline{+}$ with the Contra-tener in $\underline{-}$, and likewise the Base being stopped in $\underline{+}$ to agree with the Tener in $\underline{-}$ in the vnison, as appeareth in the forme following.

Kni. Now I thanke you Timothess, for all your paines, I like it passing well. Now fet downe fome leffons, for now there remaineth onely them behind.

Tim. I hope I have not erred verie much in my indeauours, and for leffons, you shall have fome of all forts, but yet (befides leffons) there is this that followeth remaining, to be spoken off.

When you have learned all the rules fpoken off before perfectly, and can give a good effay of any leffon at the first fight. Yet this one rule more, shall fullie conclude, what hath or can bee faid concerning the playing of a lesson at the first fight. Therefore when some there is a lesson given you to play at the first fight. First looke it ouer before you offer to play it, for these reasons following.

First fee what manner of leston it is, whether it bee a fet Song, Innomine, Pauen, Galiard, Almaine, ligne, Lenolta, Coranta, Conntry dance, or Toy, what focuer, according to the nature of the leston, to give it his grace with grauitie or quicknes. Secondly by looking it ouer, you shall fee the fastest time in all the leston contained, that accordingly you may fo begin as you may goe through without check. Thirdly by looking it ouer first, you shall fee whether it be faire & true prickt, without blots. Lastly, by having once feene it, you may the better remember it when you fee it againe. All these reasons well confidered, you fhall finde in them such necessities, fuch truth, fuch ease, with fuch content & delight, as you will confesse, labour maketh hard things perfect, or (to speake more truely) ready. Now, when you can play vpon the Lute, I will (God willing) they you how your Lute shall instruct you to fingsinformuch that you may be your owne teacher, and faue the charge of a finging man, and then what by your skill in playing vpon the Lute, and the knowledge you have in the prickforg, you may verie easilie attaine to play vpon the Viol de Gambo, either by Tabliture or by prickforg notes. For the carriage of your left hand vpon the Lute, is likewife justly to be observed vpon the base Viol, as shall bee more plainely declared in his due place after the Lute leftons.

And thus for a laft farewell (for this time) I give you in general charge, to vie all inftruments with a good grace, comelie play, without anticke faces, or fhouldrings, except fuch (which of neceffitie) the nature of the inftrument doth require; as, reaching flops vpon the Lute, wher you lay your finger along & firetch out your little finger along at length, as from 0 to b, and in comming from the Trebles of the Viol, to the Bafe, wher of neceffitie you mult, fornewhat thrut the neck of the Viol from you, and thrink in the bow hand, to come fitly vnto it. And now it makes mee formewhat fhrinke, to thinke that :

P Arhaps, there may fome Chriticke Satire fad, (Fraught with the Froth of vulgars excellent) Hunt for a praife, and fay how that is bad, Which hee doth know fo much as Iacke a Lent, Such Hounds I fay, when they their mouths have fpent,

Let them take heed their hunting be not spide, Least that the Glower hang them for their hide.

I know, the Envious, Idle, Ignorant, Will fpit at mee the poyfon of their fplene, Againe, I know the Skilfull Laborant, Will not miflike, when they my works haue feene, An Honeft minde will foone know what I meane. For Countries caufe a Souldiour fpends his Blood, And I my Talent for my Countries good.

Now I have led the Way and broke the Ice, Caft out the Lumps and left the Water cleere: If any one to follow make it nice, And yet that they can Better it will fweare, To fuch I fpeake Aloud that they may heare, Except they Doe't they will not be Beleen'd, And being Caft, tis hard to bee Represen'd.

I doe not Rob the Skilfull of their due, Nor Patch my Bad, with other Good inuention, For if Old grounds Falfe fet, I doe make True, Therein I thew of Art the true intention, And this (I hope) deferues no reprehention. But yet I know, how Well I ere intend it, Some will far fooner finde a Fault then mend it.

Some Mandrake Mome, difposde to pick a Quarrell, (Aff. if hee doe, it is a thing that drempt I on) Will fay I speake too much vpon the Barrell, And so I doe, but yet it is an emptie one, How ere it is, yet so it is that tempt I on, The Wise, to worke his eucrlasting Fame, The Foole, to worke his eucrlasting Shame. Heere endeth the Tabliture for the Lute.

Rules to instruct you to Sing.

TIRST, you shall vnde: stand, that all that is to be done in fong, is within the compasse of an eight, called a Di-Lipition, for what is about an eight, is but a repetition of the same notes which you vttered before, in the eight notes of your Gam-vt.

As for example.

Heere you fee, that from Gam-vt to G-fol-re-vt in space, to G-fol-re-vt in rule aboue, are the same in number, quantitie and qualitie: which according to the Alphabet, from G.a.b.c.d.e.f. and then G. againe by rule and space, are expressed in the Diapajon, by fue termes, words, or notes, as thus. Vth for vt, re, mi fa, fol, la, and fo still the higher you goe, fa, fol, la, full, fa, fol, la, &c. which is thus expressed in tablature.

Now you have gotten the way to tune your voice, (note for note) with the Lute in the vnifon, (that is : all in one tune or found, or eight vnder) then you may rule your voice to the Viol alfo : Firft knowing the quantitie of tymes, and their refts; for the which purpole I have fet out fome Pfalmes, both to the voice, and Lute, and voice & Viol, in the Vnifon, for your fure guide. Alfo, I have fet them full to the Lute, fo that you may vfe which you pleafe at your pleafure. The times of prickfong, you may know by the times of the Lute : as followeth.

Rules to instruct you to sing.

Hould your Viole fomewhat strongly betweene your legs, and in all points, carrie your left hand vpon it, as you doe vpon the Lute.

Hould your bow or flick, hard by the Nut of it, with your forefinger, aboue the flick, your fecond and third finger (in the hollow of the Nut) betwene the heire and the flick, and your little finger beneath the heire, flack quite from it.

Rules to instruct you to sing.

Weet IESV who fhall lend mee wings.
